

New Software Creates Animated Timelines with Multiple Applications

Imagine the ability to take a basic timeline and turn it into a sleek, animated presentation in a matter of minutes. That is the power of WesNelson's latest software release: TimeLinear.

(PRWeb) January 15, 2007 -- TimeLinear is a new and dynamic software with a user-friendly interface which walks the most novice user through a timeline creation. TimeLinear stands apart in its ability to customize the timeline for presentation, both in color palates and use of images.

Originally created for courtroom presentations, TimeLinear is found to have a wide spectrum of industry applications, including medical/dental treatment plan presentations, educational projects and tutorials, and genealogical graphing. Clearly, this software ranges from the professional realm to personal hobby use.

TimeLinear is multi-faceted in that the user can create both "time frames" which are spans of time, as well as "events" which are individual occurrences along the timeline. The presentation mode can be highly customized by changing colors, images and fonts. Various styles (color palates) can be saved and applied to future timelines for consistency.

"When our clients requested a timeline presentation, our research quickly revealed that an affordable, easy-to-use product was not on the market," explains David Jones, President and CEO of TrialPoint Trial Services and creator of TimeLinear. "Our programmers' goal was to streamline the software so our neighbor's eight year old son could do a school report using TimeLinear."

TimeLinear user, Jackie Morris, of Carefree, AZ comments, "My daughter bought me TimeLinear to help me organize our family history. Now our friends don't mind hearing our family stories since they can see the family pictures and I can create links to short stories about our family history."

WesNelson Software, TimeLinear's parent company, is offering an introductory rate of $59.95 or users can download a trial version at no cost. "In the past month, we have seen sales double as everyone from teachers and students to attorneys and family tree enthusiasts come to appreciate the ease of use and professional appearance of their presentations," totes Mr. Jones.
